More than 100 Michigan businesses honored with Green Awards; Helena Chemical Company receives top honor

LANSING – A record number of Michigan agribusinesses were recognized this week at the 7th annual Michigan Agri-Business Association (MABA) Green Agri-Business Awards, presented at the association's annual winter conference in Lansing. Awards were presented to 104 businesses that demonstrated their environmental stewardship and sustainability work through the MABA program. 2018 was the first year in the history of the program with more than 100 businesses earning the award.

In addition to the presentation of the Green Agri-Business Awards, Helena Chemical Company was named the 2018 Outstanding Green Agribusiness.

“Michigan’s agriculture sector is a regional and national leader when it comes to sustainable business practices, and the Green Awards provide a way to recognize the sustainability work happening throughout our state,” said Jim Byrum, president of MABA. “Participation in the program has grown every year since its inception, clearly demonstrating our industry’s commitment to sustainability. We’re especially proud that the Green Agri-Business Awards program topped 100 participants this year.”
